Your Patients' Gender Identity Matters

Gender is non-binary, not a choice, and not a diagnosis. Although most healthcare organizations have an awareness that all patients must be treated equally, a patient's gender identity can create unique challenges throughout healthcare, including locating providers, accessing information, choosing appropriate treatment and understanding insurance coverage. Healthcare personnel may lack the experience, understanding, cultural and clinical competence, and the obligations imposed under the law to provide the necessary care.

This webinar defines gender identity, gender expression and sexual orientation, and identifies risks in treating this population within healthcare. We discuss applicable regulatory, statutory and case law and focus on lessons learned and risk mitigation strategies.
